Here are The Top Five Reasons Faith is Not What You Think It Is. Faith is not Blind I really believe that this misunderstanding comes from a bad interpretation of a familiar Bible passage. 2 Corinthians 5:7 says, "for we walk by faith, not by sight." (ESV) People then take this passage to mean that faith is sightless or blind.

Although people seem to think the ability to meditate is part of one's DNA—you can either do it or you can't—like most skills, the cognitive capacities for meditation can be trained. Supporting thousands of years of anecdotal evidence from contemplative traditions like Buddhism, modern science is now showing this in its own way.
